Every one who finishes the allotted distance will, however, get a survivor's medal.

Mrs. Hall Diverts Mind in Law Study

finger of shame at him and whisper, "That's Dr. Hall's son. His father was killed because he wasn't good."

Mrs. Hall has taken to the study of law for two reasons. First, she desires something to take her mind off the rigors of the trial. Secondly, she believes that nobody knows as well as she what is called "the falsity of some of those who are testifying for the state."

She believes that if she can imbue her lawyers with a firm conviction each day that Prosecutor Simpson is but adding to a tissue of lies, they will have the enthusiasm to battle vehemently against him.

Watches the Case Closely.

So, every morning Mrs. Hall talks with her attorneys for half an hour before court convenes. She points out to them any mistakes she thinks they have made the previous day, and congratulates them on whatever victories they may have scored.

One of Mrs. Hall's most severe burdens is the threatened action of Senator Simpson to place Prof. George A. Dorsey, noted ethnologist, on the stand to prove that Willie, her brother, has negro blood.

The special prosecutor when court opened today still had failed to make good his promise to produce Dorsey.

Cantor Praised

REV. JOSEPH SCHAPIRO (above), cantor of the Temple B'nai Israel, has received hundreds of congratulatory messages from Jews throughout the city who listened to him ushering in the new Jewish month, Kislev, over the radio from Libby's Hotel. The cantor was assisted by a choir of fifty voices, led by Prof. Meyer Machtenberg.

Guests See Navy Film

Southern Women Are Out Again—for the Cash, Suh

A DEBUTANTE'S DAILY LETTER

The Most Entertaining Society Column in New York

New York, November 13.

Sue, dear:—

The Southern women are at it again. On December 2, the Metropolitan will whirl with soft "ahs" and high pitched, fluttering voices. The daughters of the old South will be watching "The Jewels of the Madonna," in order that the youth of their native states may have a chance to find themselves.

They have some sort of a Met benefit every year. You know the gang—the Southern Women's Educational Alliance, with Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson as honorary chairman, and Mrs. George R. Boynton as the working chairman.

Up From the Mountains

They rake in the dough from the ticket sale and use it to educate poor little girls from the South who otherwise wouldn't have a chance. They bring them out of their mountains and fit them into some job other than keeping on the lookout for revenue officers and making corn pone.

As usual, they've dragged in the debs. It's still early enough in the season for them to be willing workers. They're scurrying round town with their pockets full of tickets, and are selling whole blocks of them. Several of the girls you know are on the list—Audrey Joel, Helen Wilmerding, Aline Woods, Sara Chisholm and Barbara Van Rensselaer, for instance.

No Escape

Mrs. Spencer Waters has the junior committee in tow—is bossing the younger married women and the unattached belles. She had a gang of them in for tea last week to get them started, and now they're making life miserable for their friends until they promise to be on hand. Mrs. J. Theus Munds is on this committee, so is Mrs. Gavin Hadden, Mrs. Louis de l'Aigle Munds, Mrs. Oswald Jimenis, Mrs. John Hopkinson Baker, Mrs. Joseph L. Seligman, Mrs. J. Berens Waters, Mrs. Mark T. Dowling, Mrs. Faris R. Russell, Mrs. Adrian Iselin, 2d, Mrs. James A. Moffett, Mrs. S. Perry Beadleston, Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Charles G. West, Jr., Mrs. George Leary, Jr., Mrs. Alfred J. Cass, Mrs. Charles M. Kinsolving, Mrs. William B. Olmsted, Miss Lucy Allen, Betty Kress and Raymonde C. Almirall.

The eligibles might just as well buy their tickets first as last—for getting persuasive, there's no escape.

WRONG OIL KILLS TOT

CORNING, N. Y., Nov. 13.—A dose of camphorated oil, administered in mistake for castor oil by Mrs. Samuel A. Jack of Corning resulted in the death of her baby daughter, Margaret Dorothy.
